Echo Effect

Meet the Print, Echos of Her

The “Echo” print was born from a desire to bring our creative community directly into the design process. We’re continually inspired by the women who make up our community—from the artists we collaborate with to those who wear and share our pieces every day.

For this print, we partnered with three local Vancouver photographers who have been part of our story through countless shoots. Together with our design team, we curated and layered a selection of their favourite images into a striking print that feels both artistic and wearable. This collaboration is a true reflection of what Symply stands for: creativity, community, and the power of women supporting women.

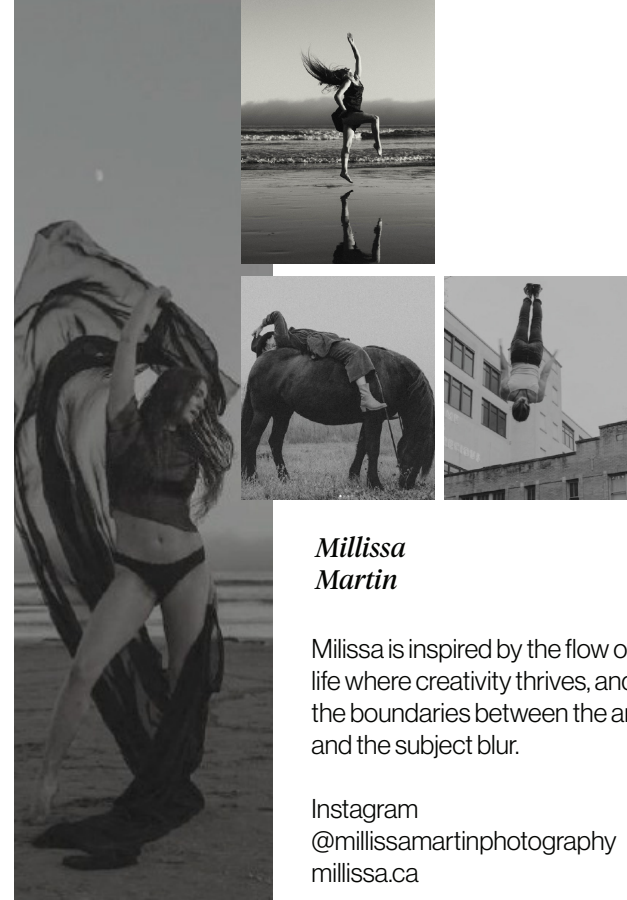

“Echo” is more than just a print—it’s a tribute to local talent, a celebration of storytelling through art, and a reminder that beauty is created when we come together.
